

JAPANESE ARE NOW ADVANCING

Marshal Oyama Is Intent Upon Forcing the Russians Into a Battle at Once.

CHANGES HIS METHODS OF ADVANCE

Mikado's Leaders Adapt a Different Method of Procedure From That Used in Approaching Liao Yang.

London, Sept. 23.—With an army which is believed to outnumber greatly the Russian force, Marshal Oyama has begun his forward movement to force another great battle with Kourapatkin. There is every reason to believe the Japanese are in far better circumstances than their enemy. Their base, Yinkow, is within easy distance of Liao-Yang, and it is known that immense quantities of stores and a large number of men have been landed there during the interval since Liao-Yang fell. Oyama's reports show that the Russian stock of ammunition and provisions, depleted by the week of fighting, suffered severe inroads, owing to the quantities which were left behind. Therefore the Japanese army is fresher and better equipped.

From present indications the first action in the Mukden battle will be at Fushun, almost due west of Mukden, where the coal mines are located, on which Kourapatkin must depend for fuel for the railroad. The capture of this place also is essential to the turning movement which the Japanese have used with success in every battle during the war. Fighting may begin there at any time.

Scout Reports Advance.
Mukden, Sept. 23.—Capt. Schubert and four Buriat Cossacks have returned from a long scout south of the Japanese main army. The captain brings important information regarding the Japanese locations and movements, and says active operations in this vicinity probably will develop within a few days.

Capt. Schubert experienced great kindness at the hands of the Chinese, who fed him and his men and offered to disguise them in Chinese clothing. This, however, was not necessary, as the party eluded the Japanese pickets, passing within a few yards of one, and reaching the Russian lines in safety. Small parties of Japanese skirmishers are pushing northward on the road from Bentlaputze on Fushun.

Oyama Aids Nogi.
It is stated by Russian spies that Marquis Oyama has detached a considerable force to co-operate with the army before Port Arthur.

The Russians have taken many Manchurian prisoners, among them being found a number of Chinese regular soldiers.

The weather suddenly has turned cold. The supplies of uniforms are inadequate and the soldiers are being supplied with Chinese paddled overcoats, which have been bought in large quantities.

The Chinese are extensively counterfeiting Russian money.

The surgeon of one of the Siberian regiments, who was captured at Liao-Yang, has arrived here. The Japanese found him tending the wounded. They treated him well, entertained him at a concert in the famous Liao-Yang summer garden and offered him a position as surgeon in the Japanese army. Finding that he preferred his own regiment, the Japanese good naturedly escorted him to the lines and allowed him to return to Mukden.

Japanese Advance in Force.
St. Petersburg, Sept. 23.—The Japanese operations against Mukden are rapidly developing. Gen. Kourapatkin announces that the Japanese army at Bentlaputze is beginning to advance northward.

A New York Salad Abroad.

This summer there seems rather a set against ices at the smart dinners. We are now such slaves to health and diet cures. At a well-known house there was a curious dish of fruit mixed with watercress, a cross between a compote and a salad. The result was very satisfactory.—London Outlook.

According to the latest information received by the war office Field Marshal Oyama's advance forces are still thirty miles south and southeast of Fushun. The war office does not expect a battle at Fushun until after a series of rear guard engagements.

Kourapatkin has placed strong forces astride the Mukden and Fushun roads to Bentlaputze. The Russians are also holding all the passes of the Da Range, eastward of Bentlaputze.

Predict Severe Fighting.
A dispatch from Harbin announces that another Japanese regiment is moving further eastward, but it is regarded as impossible that the Japanese will move in considerable force from Dziautchan along the route leading to Mukden, Fushun and Sinsintin. Severe fighting is probable before the Japanese succeed in reaching the Hun river.

A detachment under Gen. Rennenkampf, while reconnoitering on Wednesday, lost two officers and nine men killed and had three officers and twenty-three men wounded.

During the repulse of the recent Japanese attack on Da paa Gen. Peterhoff took several prisoners and captured a quantity of arms and ammunition. The Russians lost a captain and three men killed and had forty-five men wounded.

Japanese Change Tactics.
Judging by present developments Marquis Oyama is giving up the idea of cutting Kourapatkin's communication to the northward and contenting himself with advancing upon the Russian front and flank in such fashion as to force the evacuation of the town and compel the Russians to retreat farther north. This whole plan of the Japanese advance shows a considerable difference from the operations at Liao-Yang. At the same time it is possible the Japanese again are making undisclosed movements, as they have successfully done in the past.

Oyama Has Four Armies.
According to the best information Oyama has three armies concentrated south and southeast of Mukden, a fourth corps consisting of two divisions, composed of men drafted from the armies of Gens. Kuroki, Nodzu and Oku, being detached to Dziautchan, and these sending out flanking columns northward and northeastward with the object of protecting Oyama's right and at the same time driving in the Russian outposts.

An enveloping movement on such a large scale as Kuroki essayed at Liao-Yang is not expected. Evidently the Japanese realized that their strength is inadequate to justify another attempt to surround Kourapatkin, who is now stronger by two army corps than he was at Liao-Yang.

BANDITS TELL OF THEIR PLAN

Chicago Detectives Succeed in Making an Important Arrest Today.

PRISONER MAKES FULL CONFESSION

Tells Police of His Connection with the Organized Band of Murderers Who Slew Hans Peterson Recently.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 23.—As the result of the statements of John Francis Smith, the self-confessed bandit and burglar, the police now believe they have not only completed the chain of evidence that will send "Jacko" Briggs to the gallows for the murder of Hans Peterson, but that they have made arrests that will bring to an end the reign of terror existing on the West Side.

Through confessions which Smith made to Lieut. O'Hara the existence of an organized band of hold-up men and burglars has been discovered, and three arrests have been made.

Smith named Briggs and John, alias "Lefty," Leonard, and Harry Brown as the three men who held up and shot

Plan of Hold-Up.
He had planned to make one of the party, but being a few minutes late, did not reach the scene until after the murder. Several weeks before, however, he had gone into the Peterson store, and under the pretense of buying a dime novel and a plug of tobacco, had noted the position of the cash drawer and the different avenues of escape, and it was acting upon the information that he gathered in this way, he says, that the robbers committed the robbery.

This statement was later borne out by 16-year-old Minnie Olson, who had ridden with him on a Lake street car that evening, and who told Lieut. O'Hara of their arrival at the corner of Lake and Robey streets.

Was in Fear of Arrest.
"When we got there there was a big crowd," she said, "and I wondered what had happened. John said he guessed there had been a hold-up, and Thrusts Baby Upon Stranger.

Acting on the thought, apparently, the woman slipped the child into Mrs. Halcott's lap. Before Mrs. Halcott could recover from her astonishment the stranger had started to run toward Clark street.

"Please take good care of baby," she said, stopping for a farewell glance, "and God will bless you."

The woman ran to the street and boarded a southbound cable train. Mrs. Halcott hurried home and told her husband of the incident. He agreed with her that they would be father and mother to the infant if its mother did not return.

"Perhaps if I tell you all," she said, "you can advise me. My home is in the south, where my two other children now are. My husband and I came to Chicago, where our baby here was born on Aug. 12.

Confessions Aid Police.
According to the police, Smith made admissions which revealed the existence of an organized band of robbers, who have been operating on the West and North Sides.

Acting on this information, Capt. Collins of the Warren avenue station arrested James Finley, otherwise known as "Circus Solly" and "Lefty," and William Gordon. A third alleged member of the band is reported to have been apprehended in Coldwater, Mich.

While the search was being made for the men, an investigation of pawnshops and "fences" resulted in the recovery of more than $200 worth of goods.

Among the places said to have been robbed are the jewelry store of S. J. Rathway of 880 West Madison street, the residence of Charles Fanning at 1027 Park avenue, and the hardware store of P. W. Neuges, 1355 West Madison street.

PRESENTED BABE TO COMPLETE STRANGER

Mother Gives Her Babe Up, After Telling a Weird Tale of Desertion.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 23.—Telling a story of desertion and misfortune, a woman, whose identity the police have been unable to learn, placed her baby in the arms of Mrs. Robert Halcott, who was sitting on a bench in Lincoln park, and fled. The infant, little more than a month old, is at the residence of Mrs. Halcott, who declares she will keep and rear it.

As Mrs. Halcott was sitting in the park at the foot of Garfield avenue she was approached by a middle aged woman carrying a baby.

"You will not think that I wish to annoy you, I hope," she said at length; "but I have had so much trouble, it seems as if I must talk to some one."

STEFFEN'S PLAN WAS LAID BARE

WHAT THE MEN OF BRAINS THINK OF ARTICLE.

GERMANIA'S OPINION OF IT

Merely a Campaign Article Bought and Paid For by the Administration Leaders.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Milwaukee, Sept. 23.—I would like to call attention of the general public to the article which is to appear in the Milwaukee magazine. Then I would like every one to read what F. E. Sullivan of the Chicago Chronicle, perhaps the best known political writer in the west to-day, says of Mr. Steffen. He says:

Today La Follette leaders received proofs of an article on Wisconsin politics that is to appear in the October issue of the Milwaukee magazine. It is from the pen of Lincoln Steffen, whose recent misrepresentation of political and municipal conditions in Chicago, against certain politicians and citizens of that city served to veil the corrupt practices of others whom Mr. Steffen, for reasons of his own, preferred to regard as patriotic, public officials and citizens, will be remembered.

Fortunately for the truth of history a reasonably accurate account of Steffen's movements and methods were kept by persons in Wisconsin, who tried in vain to assist him in his investigations.

Steffen's article from beginning to end is a wholesale condemnation of the men who are identified with the stalwart cause and equally laudatory of the governor and his faction. Editor Wheelock accuses Steffen not only of approaching the investigation with bias, but with deliberate refusal to accept information from anyone except those who were known to be La Follette men. Mr. Wheelock says that he went to Steffen voluntarily and that Steffen refrained from seeking the assistance of anyone connected with the stalwart movement. He gave Steffen certain information in his possession and offered it Steffen would remain in Wisconsin a few days longer, to prove its accuracy. Steffen's reply was that he had to take the next train for New York.

Offered to Inform Him

Col. William J. Anderson of Madison formerly private secretary of Gov. Scofield and for twenty-three years a newspaper writer of recognized conservatism and merit in Wisconsin, met Steffen at the disposal of the investigator. He directed Steffen to certain state records as a means of obtaining much valuable information concerning the matters and things which he intended to write. Steffen followed his own ideas, and, according to trustworthy persons, accepted information only from administration sources.

The natural inference to be drawn from this is that Mr. Steffen's forthcoming article will be an ex parte statement of facts obtained exclusively from those who will reap the benefits that are likely to accrue from their publication.

Methods Are Unfair

It does not follow that what Mr. Steffen has to say about Wisconsin matters is wrong because the presentation thereof is ex parte, but it seems to be clearly established that this investigator of alleged municipal and state corruption is seeking sensational effects rather than impartial judgments.

The trouble with Mr. Steffen seems to be that he takes too much for granted, and is unwilling to turn the searchlight upon the sources from which he derives his inspiration, even when he is aware that they are no better than those whom he assails.

The Milwaukee Germania publishes the following criticism of the Steffens article:

Mr. Lincoln Steffen, who carries on as his literary specialty the uncovering of corruption in the various states and municipalities, and who already has published a series of most interesting articles on this subject, now has put Wisconsin under the microscope. The essay which he devotes to our state does not from an exceedingly edifying discourse for the residents of Wisconsin that has at heart the good name of the state. Of course we can not conceal the fact that if a sharp observer comes among us and brought along a good lantern, he would discover much of which we would have no reason to be proud. To bring these essays and their meaning back to their real measure, however, we must keep in mind two facts. First, one must not believe that Mr. Lincoln Steffen has been selected to slay the dragon of corruption.

He uncovers corruption only to furnish reading matter for the magazine in whose service he happens presently to be. Secondly, we must not forget that he is engaged only a comparatively short time in his investigations in each state. It is therefore impossible that he should do his work so thoroughly that he could depend upon his judgment under all circumstances. An excellent observer though he may be, it lies in the nature of things that he can not always obtain a correct picture of the state of affairs. In almost every state the ruling party is divided into two factions, one of which has the power in its hands, and the other of which would like to secure possession of it. The question now is into what hands Mr. Steffen falls when he visits a state. Here in Wisconsin he evidently leaned strongly on the La Follette wing, and it became the chief source of his information.

His essay, therefore, has assumed more or less of the character of a campaign document of the "half-breeds." As a discourse it is for that reason none the less entertaining, but that its historical value has been greatly injured by it is obvious. The picture which he draws of the governor and his opponents, his description of the bitter struggle between the hostile factions, all suffer from a certain one-sidedness. Mr. Steffen judges the entire subject from the standpoint of a man who has outspoken sympathy for one side, but has nothing left for the other. From the accusation that he wrote partially and unjustly with intention he possibly can be absolved. It simply happened that he selected the capital of the state for the scene of his investigations, and that there he came into contact with the followers of the administration rather than with the other side. That determines also the value of his essay. It is an exceedingly interesting and entertaining discourse, but in no way a true picture of the real state of affairs.

AMERICAN-SWED IN DIALECT PLAY

"Yon Yonson" Well Presented, But to a Rather Small Audience Last Evening.

"Yon Yonson," the Swedish dialect play of Gus Hegge with its humor and pathos, pleased a rather small house at the Myers Grand last evening. Charles Boyd as the big Swedish-American youth, simple in speech and actions, was met with continual applause in the revelation of his good nature and kind heart. James C. Mack made a good Amos Jennings, the man who had robbed Yon of a fortune in early life by using a patent saw-mill invented by Yon's father and left to Jennings for safe keeping, but who finally redeemed himself. John Holloway, the American agent money; Gerald Harcourt, an English tourist who could not get used to American society; were both important to the effect of the situation which they figured. Hankins, the engineer at the mill, represented the drunken lumberman with only a love for his wife and children when he was robbed of his drink. The two types of those who have something to sell were presented under the roles of Jennie Morris the young book agent by force of circumstances and Vanderbilt Botts a real estate boomer. Roly, Harcourt's nephew, was the flip little lad always flirting and always a man until danger and looking for a husband. The parts of the footman and station agent went to help along the comedy end of the production. Among the specialties introduced was a song by Lowell Larlin in her masculine way, but the best received of all were the comedy four composed of Thomas O'Brien, Frank Thorndyke, Stephen Barchman and Harry Bond.

TWO STORIES REGARDING THE SAME MEETING, ONE AN

Unbiased 'Account, the Other Prejudiced-- Mr. Glover's Evidence Conclusive.

Below in columns side by side are printed two accounts of the Jeffries meeting at Hudson night before last. In the first column the biased report of the Milwaukee Free Press, the governor's private organ, is given, and in the second is the statement of John Glover, a prominent democratic business man of New Richmond, who has no great interest in the public fight but who can be relied upon to state facts. Read the two accounts carefully and then you may be able to judge how the misstatements regarding the republican politics are juggled by the administration reporters to suit the occasion:

Special Dispatch to the Free Press, Hudson, Wis., Sept. 22.—Mr. G. Jeffries made a typical stalwart speech to a fair size audience here last night. His remarks were bitterly sarcastic and abusive and several prominent men left the hall. He did not mention Cook nor the stalwart platform, but denounced all primary laws and landed the convention system. Even prominent stalwarts were disgusted, and the friends of the governor and Assemblyman Brown, pleaser, and Assemblyman Brown, pleaser, the Omaha furnished a special train from Deer Park and New Richmond, but only about twenty-five came.

NUZUM WINS HIS SERVICE BILLS

Brotherhood Physician Succeeds in Collecting His Bill in the Knudsen Case.

The case of Dr. T. W. Nuzum, plaintiff, and Mrs. A. Knudsen and her son, Mr. Ole Knudsen, defendant, for the payment of a fee bill amounting to $32 for services rendered, was tried before Judge Justice Skinner at Brodhead last Thursday afternoon. Considerable interest was manifested and the case had to be held in the council chamber of the court for the large number of spectators. The taking of testimony and the arguments by the attorneys was not completed until about 4:30 on Friday afternoon. The jury brought in a verdict allowing the plaintiff the sum of $50 for his services. The principal witnesses for the defendant were Drs. Gibson of Janesville and H. B. Anderson of Orfordville, and for the plaintiff Drs. Fleck, Mitchell, J. Sutherland and Mott, and Mrs. Farber. Attorneys Fisher and Pierce of Janesville were the defendant's lawyers and Attorneys Sprague and Randall appeared as the attorneys for the plaintiff. The defendant had already brought suit against the doctor for the sum of $5,000, alleging that she had been treated for a broken femur bone, and that after having received treatment for the same, other physicians were summoned, who pronounced it a "wrong diagnosis" and that the patient had had the bone broken. Dr. Nuzum gave testimony that it was six weeks after the accident occurred that he visited the patient and Dr. Gibson testified that it was not until four months after the accident that he saw the patient. It was also shown by the testimony that Dr. Nuzum had not been informed of these consultations at the time it is said they occurred. The defendants in the case last week sought to show that Dr. Nuzum had treated the patient for a broken femur bone, when in fact the patient was not so affected. The jury were evidently not well enough impressed with the evidence furnished and were almost unanimous in their decision to grant the doctor the full amount of his claim, but reduced the amount of it, thus satisfying the views of the two jurors who were not in favor of granting the full judgment. It is not yet known whether or not the defendant will carry the case to a higher court.

Janesville Daily Gazette, Friday, Sept. 23, 1864.—Five Hundred for a Substitute.—We hear of two instances where men from Columbia county have each paid $500 for a substitute for one year. Pretty good wages.

Notice.—The citizens of the Fourth Ward are requested to meet at the Hyatt house hall Saturday evening, September 24th, at 7 o'clock to hear the report of the committee appointed to raise funds to procure volunteers to fill the quota of said ward, and to transact such other business as may come before the meeting. The cause is evidently dear to the hearts of the people. The people of Union evinced a large and cheerful hospitality which excited universal good feeling. The association is to meet in Beloit next year.

The most gratifying and encouraging reports come from all parts of the country in regard to volunteering. Never in the history of the war, has the determination of the people to put down the rebellion been more manifest than at present.

The employees railroad in conjunction with their employers in Douglas, Arizona, are about to erect a new twenty-five thousand dollar Y. M. C. A. for railroad men. The building will be three stories high and will occupy a ground space of 82x36 feet, exclusive of galleries, which will surround it. The first floor will have space for a well-equipped restaurant, reading room, secretary's office, lobby and other small rooms. The second floor will have a large assembly room, several bed rooms, closets and other small rooms, while the third floor will at present be used as a lodge room, but it is to be considered that it may at any further time when found necessary, be divided into bed rooms.

E. B. Boyd has resigned his position of general freight agent of the Rock Island to become commissioner of the Chicago board of trade foreign bureau.

Mr. E. B. Boyd's successor as general freight agent of the Rock Island has not yet been selected. Mr. Boyd has been connected with the freight department of the Rock Island for over fifteen years.

The largest passenger engines ever built for a railroad in the northwest will be turned out in the spring at the west Milwaukee shops of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul company. The engines will be of the Pacific type, and each will weigh 215,000 lbs. or one-third more than the big engines now hauling the Pioneer limited train between Chicago and the Twin cities. The driving wheel of the engine will be 72 inches in diameter, the cylinders 23x26 inches, and the working steam pressure 210 lbs. It is estimated that the new engines will be twenty loaded passenger cars at the rate of fifty miles an hour.

The company is just completing a number of very large freight engines. One of them on its first trip a few days ago hauled a train of seventy-five loaded cars from Milwaukee to Chicago, making the run in record time.

SAY EGGS WILL BE MUCH HIGHER

Prices Likely to Soar—Large Firms Have Corner on the Market.

According to all reports that can be gleaned from the commission men and those who are interested in the hen fruit crop for this season, the highest prices known for years are in sight for this winter, and before the "lay" of the hen is known again next spring, housewives will have paid as high as 50 cents per dozen for the product of the hen.

The fact that a corner practically exists in storage eggs and that these were secured at the highest prices ever paid for storage eggs is given as the basis of calculation.

At the present time commission men are making 17c and 18c for eggs, and the best are retailed at 20c. All during the spring and summer when eggs usually go less than 12c, cents per dozen, the price has never gone lower than 14c or 15c and has held most of the time at 18c. Brief periods of high prices have heretofore been known when snowbound roads and disheveled sheds have caused prices to go very high, but never before has the long continued high price been maintained, especially in the summer season.

During the latter part of March and April and early May when storage men usually buy eggs at low prices, there were no eggs bought less than 15c and the majority of the eggs were bought at 18c. The smaller commission firms withdrew from the market early because of the high price, fearing that there would be little or no profit in buying for storage at such prices. The big firms, such as Armour & Co., Swift & Co., continued in the market and paid the highest prices for storage eggs ever known. In one week Swift & Co. paid out $3,000,000 for eggs. As a result these firms practically control the egg market and it is not likely that they will unload at any low figure.

Usually Janesville merchants contract many thousands of dozens of eggs during the summer, but this year they have dropped out and in place of the hundreds of cases in storage, these are practically none controlled by local men. The consumption of eggs is increasing more and more every year, and the commission man "especially is this true while meat is high, and this summer the meat strike has induced many people to eat less meat, and they turn to eggs as a substitute. It is my opinion that the highest prices ever paid for eggs will be along about January and February, 1905, when the storage eggs must be drawn upon for the supply and the firms which control the market will be almost able to dictate the price.

Even a big commission firm almost had cold feet last spring, and feared that they were going to lose money on storage eggs, but when they saw the smaller firms withdrawing from the market they began buying with all their might to get control of the market, and they did.

HEALTHY PLANTS

Require the Most Careful Attention as Well as Good Soil.

Did you know that a rosebush which—despite the most beneficial environment of soil—of sunshine—and of atmosphere,—seemed never to achieve a healthy growth.

A ton of manure will not help a plant that has a cancer eating out its heart.

You must destroy the cause before you can cure the effect.

You cannot cure Dandruff and Baldness by rubbing on hair lotions, and rubbing in vasoline, etc.

You must look to the cause of the trouble—It is a germ, at the roots of your hair which causes it to fall out.

Newbro's Hairdye destroys the germ, and healthy hair is the sure result.

AMUSEMENTS

"His Last Dollar," a new and successful romance of Kentucky life by David Higgins and Baldwin G. Cooke will be presented at the Myers Grand Saturday night with Mr. Higgins in the character of Joe Braxton, and Eleanor Montell as Eleanor Downs.

The play is modern and the scenes are laid in New York and its environs. The drama is in five well-constructed acts, and the contrast of humor and dramatic well arranged.

As usual Mr. Higgins has introduced some new characters, typical on the soil, and yet entirely new as stage portraits, and in the character of Joe Braxton, the rich young southerner, quite capable in his own opinion of measuring swords with the mighty powers of Wall street, he has his best and most legitimate dramatic opportunity, and it's but fair to say he has taken full advantage of his chances.

As Eleanor Montell depicts the gentle but brave Kentucky girl, who for her dying father's sake braves the hardships of a trip to the east to enter here race horse in the Great Futurity, knowing that on his meagre chances of winning depends the future of her dearly beloved family.

The sentiment is deeply imbued in the truthful side of a humanity, and the play's serious side is handled naturally and with no bid for false sympathy. There is no clap trap appeal to the sensational and no effort for exaggerated effects, based on shallow incidents. It is a natural story told in every day sensible fashion, and its chief merit is said to lie in this fact. The treatment by its authors has been such as to keep the play in the sphere of actuality, and, in a good measure, free from theatricalisms. An adequate scenic equipment is offered, and the opportunity for good settings well provided for.

"Buster Brown," which is a farce, a musical comedy and a spectacle

all in one. Mr. Melville B. Raymond the well-known manager has secured from the New York Herald and Richard F. Outcault the sole rights of dramatizing the humorous incidents of Buster's life. Nearly all of us have enjoyed Buster and are ready to take his stage representation to our hearts. That we shall have a good performance of this part is assured by the fact that the clever little comedian, Master Giovanni, will be Buster. There is an elaborate scenic setting and some fifty people are engaged in the performance, including a chorus, a ballet and a heavy of "American Beauties" of guaranteed beauty, arrayed in the latest fashion by Wannamaker.

VERDICT OF THE PARTY

From the report of the committee on Credentials to the REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION, which was unanimously adopted by that convention, June 23d, 1904.

Your committee report it to be their final judgment that the convention which elected John C. Spooner, J. V. Quarles, J. V. Babcock and Emil Baczynski as delegates at large, and their alternates at large, to this convention from the state of Wisconsin WAS THE REGULAR CONVENTION OF THE REPUBLICAN PARTY IN WISCONSIN, and that the delegates elected by it are the regular elected delegates at large from the state of Wisconsin to the republican convention, and, as such, are entitled to seats in this convention.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

The government is confronted with a peculiar proposition concerning the civil service protected employees, and some trouble is experienced in solving problems which time has developed.

One of the most serious is the old age problem. There are thousands of men today on the government pay roll who have passed the age limit and the service is suffering through inefficiency in many cases. These men have given from 20 to 30 years to single employment, and while they have been faithful but few of them have provided for old age.

A pension has been suggested for this class of employees, but this is not considered practical as the list is growing rapidly and will continue to grow so long as the present civil service rules are enforced.

To prevent employees from growing old in the service another plan has been suggested, and that is to limit appointments to ten years, but it is argued that many men are indispensable to the service after ten years experience and it would be a loss to remove them.

Thousands of these employees are started at a $900 salary, and if they merit promotion, advancement follows until they reach the $1800 or $2000 mark. Some congressmen have prepared a bill which provides for removal after ten years of service, unless advancement has been secured.

This whole trouble grows out of a reform that was started during the first Cleveland administration, and was one of the losses of his campaign. Civil service has as many holes in it as a skimmer, and the republican party will wake up to the fact some day and abolish two thirds of the system, and modify the balance so as to make it practical.

The best service rendered to any employer, whether it be the government or the individual, is the service that is backed by merit, and nothing else. The man who looks ahead for a term of years with a feeling of security, as civil service protected employees do, is apt to develop into a time-server.

He may do his work in a half hearted slipshod way, and not be disturbed, because he is unaccountable to no one but a civil service commission a thousand miles away, and when negligence is called to their attention they may reach the case in six months if not too busy.

The employer is too far from the employee. There is too much machinery and red tape about the system to command the best service.

This is on the side of the public, but how about the thousands of young men who are personally interested. If there is anything that stimulates ambition, it is the spirit that prompts young men to do their best for employers. The young man who knows that his position as well as his future depends upon his ability to render more than ordinary service, is the young man who is in the line of advancement, but the government employee is largely deprived of this incentive.

There are many departments where the limit is close to the commencement. The man at 60 may be stamping letters in the postal service at $12 a week after 40 years experience, with but little to show for it but gray hairs and enfeebled energy. He might better have commenced pounding sand at a dollar a day. It is considered a great honor to be employed by the government, and to enjoy the protection which civil service affords, but it is a mistaken notion. The men who have reached the age limit have enjoyed the honor, but if they had to live again they would seek some channel that offered more than honor.

In this progressive age of rare opportunity it would be a blessing to thousands of young men in government employ, if they were obliged to seek other channels that had something to offer besides honor and a small salary. There are two sides to the civil service question.

DEBS FOR PRESIDENT.
It is humiliating to the nation that the man, Debs, who spent six months in the Woodstock jail as a punishment for leading the strike which resulted in the Chicago riot, should be elevated to the leadership of a national party.

Mr. Debs is the presidential candidate on the Socialistic ticket and while he stands no chance of being elected, he has gained recognition. If Mr. Debs was dependent for support upon the class of people who were mixed up in the Haymarket riot, it would not be alarming, but there were many intelligent people who were in sympathy with him then, and who are willing to trust him as a leader now.

It will be remembered that the late governor Phleger of Michigan, then Mayor of Detroit, not only protested against the action of president Cleveland in sending troops to Chicago to quell the riot, but the mayors of 40 other cities were persuaded to join in the protest.

The fact will also be recalled that Mr. Debs was fined and dined by a lot of sentimental people while in the Woodstock jail and that he accepted, by invitation, a prominent Chicago pulpit the Sunday after his release. The greatest danger that threatens the nation today is not from what is sometimes termed the ignorant masses. There is a large class of intelligent people who are surface thinkers. People of one idea, and so absorbed by it that they are ready to adopt any fact that bears the high sounding title of reform and waiting to follow the leadership of any man who possesses the ability to direct them.

The country is not destitute of this class of leaders. Bryan is a bright and shining example, and Wisconsin has a governor who plays him a close second, while Debs comes to the surface as the idol of his party.

Bryan wrecked the democratic party and he was endorsed by 6,000,000 voters who said that his visionary theories were practical. La Follette has played havoc with the republican party in the state and popular sentiment has endorsed his hobbies. What amount of strength Debs will develop can only be determined when the votes are counted in November, but it will be strong enough to surprise thinking people.

This is not a pessimistic view of the situation but it is a plain statement of cold facts. The nation is stronger than any party and when peril becomes imminent the people unite as one man for self-protection.

Mr. Bryan and Mr. Debs have had their day, and Mr. La Follette is nearing the end of his career. The three men are dangerous leaders.

ONLY EIGHT PER CENT.
The report of the state department of labor states that the membership of the American Federation of Labor in March was 1,826,114, which it says, is about three-fourths of the total trades union strength in this country. This would make the total membership of labor organizations about 2,400,000 which is much larger than in England or Germany, says the Wall Street Journal.

But even this great number is only eight per cent of the more than 29,000,000 of persons who, in 1901 were engaged in gainful occupations in the United States. Therefore of the great army of labor only eight per cent belong to trades unions.

Nevertheless, in certain lines of trade, the unions have become very powerful, but with public opinion steadily increasing in intensity in its opposition to monopoly, whether in labor or in capital, the further progress of trade unionism will be apt to be so moderate as not to be alarming.

employers, is it safe to say that nearly every wage earner in the United States, as well as thousands of broad-minded employers, would hasten to join the unions. Then the federation of labor might boast of 29,000,000 members, instead of 1,826,000.

How would you like to be a citizen of the United States with President Debs in the White House?

Mr. Watson, the populist candidate for President is doing good work for the republican party.

Mr. Jeffris, or some other good speaker should follow the Governor in every town where he speaks. That is the kind of campaigning that will produce results.

The people of New Richmond would doubtless like to have Senator Mosher close up shop and go out of business. If they really feel that way they can accomplish their purpose by supporting the governor in his visionary schemes.

Truths, half-told are said to be falsehoods of the worst type. This is the class of truths that the governor banks on for success in the present campaign.

The railroad companies as well as Mr. Mosher, deny the charges of a $32,000 rebate made by the governor.

PRESS COMMENT.

Beloit Free Press: After reading Mr. Jeffris' speech one can fairly say that this campaign is to be an educational one—or, perhaps, more properly speaking, a study in history.

Racine Times: Of course, this government will have both ends of the Panama canal and preserve order. What is the good of a canal with both ends, or either, closed? The Panama canal will be a thoroughfare, and that is the long and short of it.

Tomahawk Tomhawk: One of our business men has a cute way and not a bad one either, of treating with political candidates. He says: "Well sir, I don't like the other man, and if I don't see anyone I like better I will vote for you."

Racine Journal: Moved by a prophetic impulse the secretary of the democratic state committee, denles vigorously the report it was to receive $1,000,000 from the eastern treasury chest for campaign purposes here. If they will be he says, lucky.

Prairie du Chien Union: The hydra-headed organ of the county politics is: If you are a La Follette shouter that's the only credential you need to be nominated, and if you don't shout for Bob and get nominated he will throw the harpoon in to you. Such tactics have never won in politics.

Oshkosh Northwestern: As soon as the people of Wisconsin reach the point where they refuse to take the word of governor La Follette for things without investigating them for themselves, the governor's hold will be broken. And beyond a question of doubt this is the tendency of the present time, and it is growing stronger every day.

LAWYER BUCKLEY HAS STATEMENT

BELOIT LAWYER WRITES TO DEMOCRATIC STATE COMMITTEE.

WILL NOT VOTE FOR PARKER

Considers Him Outside the Pale of Democracy—Writes a Spirited Letter.

Cornelius Buckley, Esq., of Beloit has been a prominent figure in the democratic ranks of Rock county and southern Wisconsin for many years, and through good and evil report he has always marched faithfully and fought bravely under democracy's banner. But, there is a limit to Mr. Buckley's democracy, and that limit was passed when the St. Louis convention nominated Judge Parker with his notorious "gold telegram." Mr. Buckley will have none of him, and his reasons therefor are tersely set forth in the following letter he has addressed to Mr. A. F. Warden, chairman of the democratic state central committee:

"Beloit, Wis., Sept. 22, 1904.
"A. F. Warden, Esq., Chairman:
"Dear Sir:—I have received your circular and accompanying documents, which for the following reasons I shall deliver to some democrat here who will comply with your request.

"I have not the remotest idea of voting for Judge Parker. I shall not vote at the November election for any candidate, Judge Parker's nomination at the St. Louis convention was a foregone conclusion, and previous to his nomination and the delivery of his famous gold telegram I intended to support him.

"It was had enough not to affirm the creed of the democratic party, as set forth in the Kansas City platform. Yet thousands of democrats, including myself, were willing to accept both the candidate and the platform of the St. Louis convention.

"But the egotism and self assurance manifested and displayed by Judge Parker, on being unanimously tendered the presidential nomination—his telegram assuring the convention that he would not accept the nomination otherwise than as a representative of the gold standard, brand him with the ear-marks of an egotist and an empire, and in my judgment absolutely places him outside the pale of democracy and the time-honored principles and precedents of Jefferson's party.

"Judge Parker will badly need in November the votes of thousands of democrats whom he insulted and humiliated in July. I observe that Mr. Vilas, in his old age, and after indulging in an eight years vacation, is again in the saddle.

"Well, the enormous ex-senator refused to support the nominee of two successive national conventions. I think I can refuse to support the nominee of one.

"Very truly yours,
"CORNELIUS BUCKLEY.

J. P. MORGAN PLANS TO RETIRE FROM BUSINESS

Proposes to Have Son Take Charge of Interests in Firm That Bears His Name.

New York, Sept. 23.—J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., has leased a New York house, furnished, for four months, and is going to spend the winter here. Mr. Morgan expects to take up the details of the management of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. at the end of the year, when his father will retire from active business, though remaining nominally at the head of the firm for some time. Wall street heard these facts and was not surprised thereat. Mr. Morgan, Sr.'s retirement has been expected for more than a year.

The financier has paid less attention to his business and more to art and charity in the last two years, and it is said that he is now willing to shift almost the entire responsibility upon his son and upon other partners, of whom he has ten. The concern is at present composed as follows, the members taking their seniority in the order named:

J. Pierpont Morgan, George C. Thomas, Edward T. Stutesbury, James W. Paul, Jr.; J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr.; Temple Bowdoin, Edward M. Robinson, Edward F. Whitney, William Pierpont Hamilton, Charles Steele and George W. Perkins. Of these only one, young Mr. Morgan, is a member of the stock exchange. It is estimated that Mr. Morgan's wealth is from $100,000,000 to $150,000,000.

UNIQUE PLEA IN DIVORCE CASE

Woman Asks Determinate Decree, Believing Estrangement Will Heal.

La Porte, Ind., Sept. 23.—Mrs. Mollie Rostien of this county is plaintiff in a most unusual divorce case. She has petitioned the court to grant her a temporary divorce. She makes no denial of her affection for her husband, but sets forth in her complaint that existing conditions have caused an estrangement which she believes time will heal. A divorce is therefore asked for a determinate period, when the marital vows may again be assumed. In the interim she prays the court that her husband pay her all money sufficient for her support. The action is said to be the first brought under a recent act of the legislature providing for determinate period divorces, and in this action the constitutionality of the law will be tested.

STRANGE FANCY OF AN OLD LADY

Eighty-One Year Old Mrs. Dudley Leaves Her Son's Home, Then Sues Him.

Mrs. Cynthia Dudley, aged eighty-one, is the complainant in a suit which she has brought through her attorneys against her son, Dr. E. H. Dudley, charging him with non-support. Mrs. Dudley has made her home with Doctor Dudley on South Main street for some years past, but, according to Dr. Dudley, she wandered away about three weeks ago and has since been staying with friends. He is at a loss to understand the suit as he says he has always provided a home for his mother and she has her own room and washing done with the family wash and every comfort he can provide for her. He says that at present her room is waiting for her at his home just as she left it three weeks ago, and he believes that some one has unduly influenced her to bring this suit to pay a grievance against him. Mrs. Dudley is very aged and according to Dr. Dudley could be easily influenced. She has left his home before and staid with friends, but has always come back after her visit was over.

A ROMANCE OF THE DAYS WHEN "THE GREAT LORD HAWKE" WAS KING OF THE SEA

BY CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Copyright, 1901, by D. Appleton & Co., New York.

CHAPTER XXX.

WHAT WAR MEANT IN THAT DAY ON THE SEA.

IN ONE of the cabins of Le Formidable lay Captain Philip Grafton. He had been badly wounded by the splinter (a piece of timber six feet long) which had hurled him to the deck of the Torbay just as she went on the rocks. The moment in which he had been thrown overboard would have been his last had it not been for the heroic devotion of old Slocum.

Seeing the helpless condition of his commander he had plunged into the water after him, and with superhuman strength, skill and courage had supported him until he had been able to lay hold of one of the floating spars of the Torbay. Slocum had lashed Grafton to the spar and had clung desperately to it himself during half the night. After being tossed about in a sickening way for hours, the piece of timber, with its two exhausted occupants, had been washed athwart Le Formidable's cables. Slocum's cries had attracted the attention of Midshipman La Perouse, afterward the celebrated navigator and discoverer, on board her, and the two Englishmen had finally gained her decks.

"The old man was not much the worse for his adventure, but Grafton was in a frightful condition. The blow, the shock, the strain of the combat, the mental agony he had suffered over the loss of his wife, had reduced him to a pitiable state. He was delirious with fever. As he lay in the berth he fought over the battle, heard once more the roar of the guns, witnessed the sinking of Le Thesee again, saw once more his white-clad wife—

Le Formidable was a veritable charnel-house. The surgeon and his mates were utterly overwhelmed by the unheard-of demand upon their services. Nearly every officer on the ship had been killed or wounded, and five hundred men in addition, before she had struck her flag. She had, indeed, been fought gallantly—nay, terribly! The ward-rooms and cabins were filled with groaning, raving men, many of whom had suffered amputation the day before, and had the tourniquets still screwed on the stumps! In some cases the blood vessels were not taken up until the third day after the battle. The gun-room, the storeroom, and every available space between the guns on the lower deck, even the cradles in the hold, to say nothing of the cockpit, were filled with men in every stage of wound and agony. The ship's medical staff were entirely unable to cope with the situation. They worked like heroes, nor eating, nor sleeping, nor taking any rest, doing their best.

The chaplain had been killed, and the suffering and dying were without the consolations and comfort of their religion even. With every plunge of the ship, the wounded, unsecured, unprovided with coats or hammocks (for there were so many that there was no place to lay them except upon the bare decks), were rolled about and thrown against each other with results too sickening to dwell upon. One hideous yell from every part of the ship mingled with the scream of the tempest. The men prayed to die, and some of the unwarmed broke down and became crazed by the awful sights and sounds.

The officer who commanded the French marines upon her, stated to the English prize lieutenant that every man of his detachment had been killed or wounded, that he had served in the army for thirty years, and had been present on the bloody field of Fontenoy, but he had never witnessed such a scene of carnage. In fact, all the surgeons could do in capital operations for hours during and after the battle had been to "amputate, smooth stumps and apply tourniquets."

Surely never on any ship was exhibited so much of the finished horror of warfare as on this unlucky vessel. The 1,600 men who had gone down on Le Thesee and Le Superbe were to be envied in comparison with the fate of this unfortunate crew. It seems to be a modern phrase to say that "war is hell," but Le Formidable presented an ancient example of its eternal truth. Her captors gazed upon the melancholy ruin they had wrought, and to them came an old saying with a new force:

"Blessed are the peacemakers!"

CHAPTER XXXI.

THE WOMAN BETRUT.

TO RETURN to the Maidstone. She carried in her cabin a passenger—nay, two. The frigates, while not daring to take part in the action, had kept well up and as near as they could to the contending ships. Hatfield had naturally marked the Torbay. He had seen the loss of Le Thesee, and had put his ship over toward the place where she had gone down. As he drew near she had ordered out his boats, and at a fearful risk—for it was a most perilous undertaking to launch a boat in such a sea—he succeeded in saving some 20 people from her crew, among them being Countess Anne and old Jean-Renaud.

There were neither accommodation, clothing, nor any other conveniences for the reception of a half-drowned woman on the frigate, yet Hatfield had done his best for her. He had given up his own cabin to her and had made her as comfortable as possible there.

deed, he had but little time from his duties. He had to watch his ship constantly. Great are its compensations as well. If Anne only could have borne the killing suspense better; alas! she had only to wait. The strength of woman is to wait. Weakness is passive, yet it conquers, or dies, in the end.

For the same reason of the storm no help could be offered the men on the wrecked ships. Some of them made rafts and escaped to the shore, where they were promptly captured, but most of them clung to their vessels until the weather moderated, when they were rescued.

It was not until the gale blew itself out that Hatfield was able to communicate with Admiral Hawke. On the third day after the battle, therefore, the weather at last made it possible for him to call away one of his boats and repair to the flag-ship. Anne went with him, for she had insisted upon going in the first boat that left the frigate. The faithful Jean-Renaud—whose grief for the master he had abandoned (though by that master's order) was not less profound than her own for the husband she feared she had lost—accompanied her. Indeed, the old man would not be parted from her.

Sir Edward Hawke, hearing that there was a woman in the approaching boat, came to the gangway to meet them. The old sailor took off his hat before her and stood with bent head, the wind blowing across his gray hairs as Anne, pale and haggard, but still lovely, followed, and, assisted by Hatfield, clambered up the ladder and stepped upon the deck.

"Sir Edward Hawke," said Hatfield, as he saluted, "allow me to congratulate you on your victory, and then to present you to the Countess de—"

"Pardon, monsieur," said Anne—"Madame Philip Grafton."

"Is it possible?" cried the admiral. "My dear lady—"

"Where is my husband, sir?" interrupted Anne.

piano to buy is the question that comes to every prospective purchaser. There are many different makes. Some are surely much more desirable than others. A which has been on the market for many years and whose manufacturers have made its name a guarantee of the highest excellence yet attained in their art.

IS

surely deserving of your careful consideration. Such a piano is found in our store. We have it in the latest styles, and fancy woods. The tone will best speak for itself—we can not do it justice. As to price, it is very moderate, quality considered, and we make terms to suit the convenience of our customers. Call in and talk it over with us, examine our pianos carefully, and decide for yourself what is BEST.

The well known pianos which we handle are the Chickering, Gabler, Shoninger, Cable, Melville, Clark, Ludwig and others. We have several good square pianos at from $40 to $65, including the Steinway, Kimball and others. We also have a number of good organs, which are almost new for from $25 to $45. These are by the best of makers.

The End... IS IN SIGHT.

With the ending of next week this less than cost sale of all musical merchandise closes. All the goods left at that time will be lumped off in some manner.

If there is anything in this stock which you can use, if not now, at a later date, my advice is, buy it now. The price is not a consideration. I am endeavoring to clean out every bit of stock; this makes buying easy for you. Every day I remain here is a loss financially and you might as well reap the benefit.
